Synod Proposals: we want to hear from you

Because of the pandemic, the final meeting of our Synod process has been put back from October to June, and our Synod Members are now at the important stage of preparing to prioritise the most important affirmations and propositions that were put forward during the last stage of the process. You can find these at https://synod2020.co.uk/proposals. If you have time to read them, please then take a bit more time to reflect on them and to ask yourself 'Which of these many proposals and affirmations do I feel most drawn to?". Then join our two-parish chat by Zoom at 12.30pm this Sunday,6th December, to let our Synod Members know your views and to help them in this discernment process. We'd really like to hear your thoughts. The link for the chat is:

Nugent Crisis Fund Update

As many of you will be aware, Nugent introduced a Crisis Fund a few years ago that Head Teachers, Priests or a representative of the parish, can apply to on behalf of families or individuals through the completion of an application form, detailing the difficulties the people are experiencing and why they require this one-off financial support. Due to a recent donation from a very generous supporter the fund continues to stay open, and we are able to make one off small grants to individuals and families within the Archdiocese at this time. More information can be found on here_or please contact the Caritas Manager, Marie Reynolds: <a href="mailto:mailt

Christmas Cards to The Latin Patriarchate of Jerusalem

Priests in the Holy Land have asked if we could arrange for all the parishes in Palestine and Jordan would receive cards. We have paired parishes in the Holy Land with parishes in our diocese so that each parish will only send cards to their named parish in the Latin Patriarchate. Our paired parishes are:

Queen of Martyrs: Fr. Ashraf Al-Nimri, The Martyrs of Jordan St Teresa's: Fr. Aldo Tolotto, St. Theresa of the Child Jesus Please post any small cards into our parish offices as soon as possible.

Console my people

Two characters loom large in the first half of Advent: the prophet Isaiah and John the Baptist. This week's passage from Isaiah, beautifully set to music by Handel in the song from The Messiah 'Comfort Ye', has a special resonance for us as this week the coming vaccine appears like a light at the end of the long dark tunnel of the pandemic. The anticipation that our time of suffering from the virus and its effects may be coming to an end links to our hope of an end to all suffering, all evil and even death itself. The joy that we will feel when we can once again visit and hug our loved ones prepares us for the wonder of the coming of our God, like a shepherd, feeding his flock, gathering the lambs in his arms, holding them carefully close to his heart.

But just as the Government and the scientists warn us that we must not relax too soon, that until everyone is vaccinated we must still keep up our guard and endure a little longer the pain of separation and the inconvenience of the restrictions, so John the Baptist reminds us that there is still sin and evil in our world, in our lives and in our hearts. He calls us to repentance leading to forgiveness and he promises that the Saviour will come.

In case we are impatient, the second reading tells us that God's time doesn't run on the same clock as ours, that the Lord is not slow to carry out his promises, as anyone else might be called slow, but patient, giving everyone the opportunity to change their ways. So while we're waiting, we should do our best to live holy and saintly lives.

The pandemic has changed many things, and it may have changed our view of what it means to be saintly and holy: we have had less opportunity to be in church, but we have come to appreciate the value of every human life and the goodness of people of all faiths and none who have reached out to help those in need. Pope Francis constantly challenges us to be a church that tends the wounds of all who suffer. As we ask the Lord to console us, we aim to be a people who comfort those in any kind of pain.
